Chair's overview of the past year:

Having completed three years as Chair of Camberwell St Giles REC, I continue to be grateful for the privilege of being involved in its work.

First, it is good to meet and correspond with such a fine group of members who attend regularly and use their talents generously. I was sorry when two of these, Professor Veena Kumari and Professor Nelarine Cornelius, stepped down after long periods of service but Dr Alison McRae and Dr Nick Nicolaou joined us and quickly made their contribution. Debates are informed and lively and I trust that our decisions are careful, clear and fair.

Second, we have had more stability in administrative support. I was concerned when Christine Hobson, yet another able Co-ordinator, decided that her future was in Australia but the Bristol office, of which I must speak highly, initially ensured temporary help then appointed Tom Fairman as our REC Manager. I am immensely grateful to Tom, who, with assistance from Elizabeth Hearn, has shown remarkable knowledge and commitment. Minutes are both accurate and sensitive to the tone of our discussions, replies to queries are prompt, and I am proud that we offer an understanding and efficient service to those who come to us for advice or review.

Which prompts a third reason for gratitude, namely the enthusiasm and knowledge of researchers and the quality of the research they present. We meet a wide range of people, from students carrying out their first project to experienced professors, well-known in their field. I hope we treat them all with the same rigour, fairness and courtesy and I have many good memories of their willingness to engage with us. Some researchers have been known to say that they are 'pleasantly surprised' by the committee, which I take to be a compliment!

Fourth, though they are unseen by us personally, I am grateful for the willingness of participants to be involved in research. It is our responsibility to protect their welfare, safety, rights and dignity and I trust that we serve them well.

We will consider carefully the facts and figures in this annual report, building on our achievements and dealing with those things that need our attention. I look forward to my fourth year with confidence.
